

Co-Teaching the Leadership Overview

with Martina Wagner

October 3, 2017 At Metro ECSU

8:30am — 11:30am (8:00am check in)

Are you an administrator who is trying to support co-teacher teams, but might not know how? Or are you an effective instructional leader who just needs a deeper level of understanding on how to best implement and sustain highly effective co-teaching? If so, this session is for you and your team!

Administrators are encouraged to bring a team of staff who are key supports to implementing co-teaching — principals, assistant principals, instructional coaches, learning specialists, supervisor, team leaders, etc.

Attend this workshop to learn how to increase your effectiveness and support successful and sustainable co-teaching in your school or district.

Participants will investigate the building blocks of co-teaching:

- Early adoption
- Challenges
- Keys to success
- Co-teaching models
- Classroom look-fors

“Success and sustainability of co-teaching systems hinges on the support of leaders. If you practice collaboration and model it with fidelity, your teacher teams will replicate.”
Workshop participant.

“The working relationships that teachers have with other adults are closely connected to and deeply consequential for the teaching and learning relationships they in turn have with their students.” Andy, Hargreaves.
