

Biographies

Beth Hamilton has been teaching high school science for eight years at Minnesota State Academy for the Deaf. She has taught biology, chemistry, physical science, anatomy and physiology courses. Beth has a bachelor's degree in chemistry from Muskingum College and a Master's degree in deaf education from Kent State University.

Patty Gordon is an interpreter and interpreter educator. She is currently an Associate Professor in the ASL and Interpreting department of St. Catherine University. She is a member of the Educational Interpreter Mentor Network and provides consulting, training and assessment services for school districts and interpreters in private practice. She has a bachelor's degree in ASL Linguistics from Metropolitan State University and a Master of Liberal Studies focused on 2nd Language acquisition from the University of Minnesota.