

RESCHEDULED: Free Workshop

The importance of emotionally plugging into children

Connection equals cooperation. How to connect with children, even challenging children, in a meaningful way is important. Sara will go over how connections improve behaviors, social emotional functioning and overall brain development. The presentation will include evidence-based material about brain development and how to best respond to children. She will also include practical skills parent's and other caregivers can use in their daily lives with children to increase connection and cooperation.

Thursday, February 21st, 2019

Presentation from: 6-7:30pm

Scott Highlands Middle School

14011 Pilot Knob Rd, Apple Valley 55124

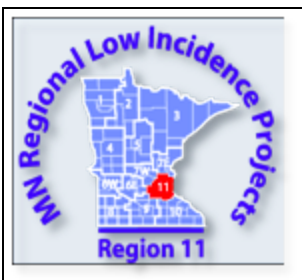

Lecture Room B

Please register by Wednesday, February 20th

Sara McGee, MA LMFT, IMH-E (III) is an Early Childhood Mental Health Specialist through Family Adolescents and Children Therapy Services (FACTS). She has received extensive training and work experience in area of infant and early childhood mental health and development. Relevant trainings include: Circle of Security Parenting, Trauma Informed Child Parent Psychotherapy and Conscious Discipline. She also completed the Infant and Early Childhood Mental Health certificate program through the University of Minnesota; and received the endorsement to provide Reflective Consultation from the state of Minnesota. She enjoys working with parents and other care providers in understanding children's behavior through a developmental and mental health lens. Children do better when we understand the meaning of their behaviors.

Please no children, as there is no child care available

Funding for this workshop is made possible with a grant from the MN Department of Education. The source of the funds is federal award Special Education - Programs to States, CFDA 84.027A AND CFDA 84.173 Special Education-Preschool Grants and 84.181 Special Education Grants for Infants and Family.